Saint Lorenzo Ruiz

Saint Lorenzo Ruiz was the first Filipino saint in the Roman Catholic Church. Born in Binondo, Manila around 1600, he served as a church helper and became known for his strong faith and devotion to God. He joined a group of missionaries that traveled to Japan during a time when Christians were being persecuted.

In Japan, Lorenzo Ruiz was arrested and tortured for refusing to abandon his Christian faith. Despite the suffering, he remained faithful until his death in 1637. Because of his courage and sacrifice, he was declared a saint by Pope John Paul II in 1987 and is now honored as the patron saint of Filipino Catholics and overseas workers.
